Welcome

... to our April newsletter.

I've mentioned in the past the value of visiting galleries and regularly viewing a variety of artwork as a way of improving ones photography. Some galleries are artworks in themselves, worth visiting simply for the architecture.

Unfortunately it can be an expensive and time consuming exercise to visit some of the best galleries around the world. Technology though has recently made this a lot easier.

Google recently unveiled their Google Art Project. Select collections from over 150 galleries – including the Auckland Art Gallery – are available to view free online with a resolution high enough to zoom-in and see details like the texture of canvas and brush strokes!

And approx. 50 collections have been captured using a variant of the StreetView technology which allows you to take a virtual stroll around the galleries and see the artworks displayed almost as if you were there – in seconds travel from The White House to the Musee de'Orsay to the Tate Modern or the Tokyo National Museum.

Take a look. It's pretty cool. <http://www.googleartproject.com/>

From The President's Desk

Hi Everyone

Welcome to another informative newsletter, we owe a lot of thanks to Carl for putting this together, and also for looking after the website.

Thank you to Gregg Ellis for the presentation you gave us last meeting, I hope everyone enjoyed it as much as I did. If only Elaine would let me spend some more money (I wish).

By the time you read this the 5Ways pics should be sorted and sent off to the 5Ways committee.

It is very pleasing to see that so many of you have gone up a grade this month, this certainly reflects the improving calibre of images being submitted, OR Geoff is doing a better job of selecting judges. lol. Congratulations to:

John - B to A Grade, Adrian - C to B, Sue - C to B, Tracey - C to B, Esther - C to B.

Don't forget next month's theme is Creepy Crawlies: There are creative ways to accomplish this as well as shooting macros or close-ups of little critters.

So until next meeting, I'll see you round like the spider by the spa pool, waiting to be photographed.

Keith.

Thanks to...

Greg Ellis for coming to our meeting and giving an interesting talk about his macro photography, and the techniques he uses to create his images. Notably, he discussed the technique of focus-stacking both capturing the images and the processing on the computer using Helicon Focus.
